

Mission Planning

Mission planning translates science objectives and operational constraints into a flight plan the glider can execute safely and effectively. It encompasses waypoint track design, dive parameter configuration, weather and tidal analysis, risk assessment, and the regulatory notifications required before any vehicle enters the water. Thorough planning reduces the probability of mission abort, vehicle loss, and unplanned interactions with maritime traffic or protected areas. All planning must be completed and reviewed before the lab test phase begins.

In This Section

Mission Planning Guide

Step-by-step procedure covering objective definition, area selection, waypoint design, dive parameter configuration, risk assessment, and permit filing.

View Guide

Planning Checklist

Printable mission planning checklist covering objectives through final review, with sign-off fields.

Open Checklist